PROBABLY SAVED HIS LIFE.

Officer Hoofnagle Performs An Act For Which He is Highly Complimented. Sunday night an aged man named W. O'Rourke, who has a room over Isen-toll's store, corner of County and Crawford streets, went home under the influence of liquor. He got in his room and attempted to lower a window, and in doing so three of his fingers got wedged under the window, and he could not pull them out. In his attempt to loosen his hand he broke out several panes of glass. Officer Hoofnagle's attention was attracted by the falling glass and he went up to the door, knocked several times and received no reply. He then opened the door, walked in and found the man with his hand wedged in the window, the entire weight of his body being held up by the three fingers. The man was unconscious, and scarcely realized any pain. The officer tried to pull his hand out, but failed. He then held the body up with his knees, put his shoulder under the window, forced it up and released the hand. The man failed to recover consciousness. The officer took him on his back and carried him down a long flight of stairs and to the station house. When he arrived he was completely prostrated from the heavy weight he had carried. The man was put in a cell, and yesterday at noon had not recovered consciousness. The ends of his fingers were broken and had turned black, and his general appearance was that of a man who had been drugged.

Officer Hoofnagle was highly complimented by the Mayor for his conduct, who said that there was no doubt but what he had been the means of saving the man's life. Later in the day, about 3:30 o'clock, he became conscious. Dr. Charles L. Culppeper says he will not have to amputate his fingers, and that the man was not damaged, his condition being the effects of whiskey taken in liberal quantities.
